Amateur Champion and Travis Among Those to Fall at Pinehurst.

QUINET CATCHES A TARTAR IN GUILFORD

Pawling Schoolboy Then Takes His Turn and Puts Out Conqueror of the Champion.

[By Telegraph to The Tribune.]
Pinehurst, N. C., April 2.—Francis Quinnet, the amateur golf champion of the United States, and the youth who he defeated in the open championship of the United States, in the first round of the fifteenth annual United States and South American golf championship tournament by a score of 4 up and 3 to go.

Quinet, the golfer who gained fame in the amateur championship last year by driving one of the longest holes ever seen in this country. While the defeat of Quinnet came as a sensation, the national champion was not the only statistician to have been defeated in the next round by Quinnet. The Pawling Schoolboy, in a battle that was carried to the twentieth hole before the schoolboy won by a score of 1 up and 1 to go.

Robeson, the former national and international champion, was another of the favorites to come to grief in the first round of match play. Robeson, who had defeated Quinnet in the first round of the tournament by a score of 2 up and 1 to go.

J. H. Sullivan, Jr., of Woodland, a former holder of the Massachusetts intercollegiate title, added to the list of favorites by putting Quinnet to rest in the morning. Sullivan, who had defeated Quinnet in the first round of the tournament by a score of 2 up and 1 to go.

YALE HAS CHANCE FOR TIE AT CHESS

Harvard Graduates Score 2½ to 1½—One Game To Be Adjudicated.

College graduates representing the Harvard and Yale clubs, of this city, met in the first round of their annual chess match for the Interclub trophy, at the clubhouse of the Harvard Club, yesterday.

The Harvard Club already has two legs on the cup, having won in 1913 and 1914, and the Yale players therefore buckled down to work with a stern resolve to do or die.

When the session ended, however, the Harvard Club led with a score of 2½ to 1½, with one game unfinished between W. M. P. Mitchell, of Harvard, and C. H. Chittenden, former president of the Brooklyn Chess Club. This game went to adjudication, and on the result will depend whether or not the Yale Club can tie the match.

The Harvard Club offered a draw on this board, which would have given its team the match, but the Yale Club declined. Chittenden was thought to have a slight advantage in position.

John L. Clark headed the Harvard Club's team and scored a well earned victory, as did C. E. Nixdorf, of the fourth board. E. G. Gifford drew a stubbornly contested game with A. S. Jamison. The lone tally for the Yale Club was notched by J. S. Wood, at board No. 5.

The summary follows:

Yale Club: J. S. Wood, 1½; C. E. Nixdorf, 1½; E. G. Gifford, 1½; A. S. Jamison, 1½; W. M. P. Mitchell, 1½; C. H. Chittenden, 1½.

Harvard Club: J. S. Wood, 1½; C. E. Nixdorf, 1½; E. G. Gifford, 1½; A. S. Jamison, 1½; W. M. P. Mitchell, 1½; C. H. Chittenden, 1½.

The Harvard Club played the white pieces on the odd-numbered boards. The openings: 1, Queen's Gambit Declined; 2, French Defence; 3, Sicilian Defence; 4, Ruy Lopez; 5, Philidor's Defence.

The annual team match on six holes between Columbia, Harvard, Yale and Princeton, representing the Eastern Intercollegiate championship, by 1 up and 1 to go.

TRIPLE TIE IN COLLEGE FENCING

Harvard, Yale and Navy Each Win Seven Bouts in Tourney.

Harvard, Yale and the Navy were tied for the lead when the preliminary round of the intercollegiate fencing championships was completed at the Hotel Astor last night. Each school had won seven and lost five bouts. Columbia had six victories and six defeats to its credit, Cornell five victories and seven defeats, and Pennsylvania four victories and eight defeats.

The struggle for individual honors began as keenly as that for the team trophy, and five men were tied with four bouts won and none lost.

The five were Philgar, of Yale, McGowan, of Columbia, Van Burkle, of Pennsylvania; Putnam, of Harvard, and Partello, of the Navy.

In all, thirty-six bouts were completed with the fencers leaving ninety-nine bouts to be finished. Six bouts were left to the sabres, Gibson, of Columbia, and Headlee, of the Navy, each winning two.

The strength of the Yale and Harvard teams was the cause of great surprise, but not so much as that elicited by the apparent weakness of the Navy trio, which on past performances seemed well nigh invincible.

Nichols, of Harvard, and White, of the Navy, fought through four extra bouts in the most exciting bout of the night. The Navy man won by one point, the score being 20 to 19. The pair was nearly exhausted.

Nichols, who fought earlier in the evening through a fine piece of sportsmanship. He acknowledged a touch by White, of Cornell, which neither of the judges saw. The Italian wanted to disclaim it, but Nichols refused to show the bout a draw, and White won the fence-off.

The summaries follow:

IRON DUKE AND THE FINN AT FANCY PRICE

H. C. Hallenbeck Said to Have Paid $35,000 for Madden Colts.

WERE HIGHLY RATED AS TWO-YEAR-OLDS

Sons of Ogden Are Well Engaged in Rich Kentucky and Eastern Stakes.

Iron Duke, rated in the first flight of two-year-olds of last season, and The Duke, which was considered not far behind him, were reported last night to have been sold by John E. Madden to H. C. Hallenbeck for $35,000.

Iron Duke was perhaps the best of the Madden two-year-olds that sported silks last year. The big son of Ogden—Saratoga Belle was his only start in most impressive fashion at the fall meeting at Belmont Park, and then rested on his laurels. He has wintered better than most of the horses at the Hamburg Place farm, and has developed into a strapping horse of bone and muscle, weighing about 1,075 pounds. Iron Duke looks very much like his full brother, Fayette, which was a sterling race.

The Ogden colt is well engaged for the big stakes at the Kentucky tracks as well as those in the East, and it was probably because of his many engagements that Mr. Hallenbeck saw his way clear to pay such a fat price. Iron Duke will remain at Hamburg Place until the season begins in Kentucky. He will, without doubt, start in the Kentucky Derby and the one at Latonia, in both of which most of the big Eastern stables will have entries.

The Finn is by Ogden—Whist. His dam was one of the best fillies to sport the Belmont silks in her day. The Finn, although he did not make the showing of his stablemate, succeeded in last year, showed enough to give promise of becoming a fine three-year-old. He came to hand early this year and had been expected to run for the early stakes at the Eastern spring meetings. Whether he will stay in Kentucky for the stakes there or come East is now a question.

Mr. Hallenbeck had been after a real good horse for some time. Not more than a fortnight ago he offered John F. Schorr $15,000 for Luke McKee, which created such a furor in Kentucky in the spring of 1914, and then turned down the offer, although the son of Ultim—Midge was thrown out of training in midsummer.

Failing to get Luke, Hallenbeck started negotiations for another good three-year-old. Mr. Madden made a flying trip to this city, and the deal was arranged. It is said that not long after the season began in Kentucky, the Finn was sold to the Place for $20,000 for Iron Duke.
